A desirable improvement.

The Indianapolis, Decatur & Springfield and the Indiana, Blounting and Western Railroad Companies have just closed negotiations which have been pending for some months, by which each road will have a track of their own from the White river bridge, at Indianapolis, to a connection with the Union tracks near the east end of the Vandallia freight depot, it virtually being a double track from White River to the Union tracks, the I. D. & S. owning the north track, the I. B. & W. the south track, and neither will be obliged to pay tribute to the Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago people, whose track they now use from Georgia street to a connection with the Union tracks. By this arrangement the I. B. & W. people also secure access to the ground they recently purchased south of the Vandallia, on which to erect a new freight depot.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

Additional Particulars About Yesterday's Tragedy—Verdict of the Jury.

HORNSTEIN'S LAST LETTER.

In our issue of yesterday we gave all the particulars then obtainable of the case of John A. Hornstein attempted wife murder, and the determined suicide of the blood-thirsty husband. After he had hidden himself in Joseph Peake's cellar, Hornstein, with the blood still dripping from the two pistol shot wounds in his head, got hold of the rusty blade of a small wood saw, and with this he made several attempts to open an artery in his left arm. He failed in this purpose, and then he took the blade in both hands, lifted his head, and hacked at his throat until he severed the jugular vein, and tore the flesh in a horrible manner. He then sank upon the cellar steps and bled to death. He doubtless imagined that he had taken the life of his young wife, because when she was rescued from his grasp by Bow-enrock, Church and Schultz, she was partially unconscious.

Dr. Weems is of the opinion that though Hornstein used the saw, he must have cut his throat with a knife, which he thinks will be found in the cellar or elsewhere under the house.

THE INQUEST.

Coroner John Dineen was notified of the suicide, and yesterday afternoon the inquest was held at the home of Mrs. Louis Wetzel, sister of the suicide, to which place the body of Hornstein was removed. On examination of Hornstein's person the following letter, without a date, and written in German, was found. It has been translated for the REPUBLICAN by Mr. M. Elstein, as given below. It indicates plainly that Hornstein was resolved upon first killing his young wife with the murderous butcher knife, and then destroying his own life by shooting himself with a revolver.

THE LETTER.

DEAR FRIENDS:—I leave this document for my friends to read after the great deed which I am resolved upon has been committed. I have tried my very best to get the awful purpose out of my head and heart, on account of the disgrace that will fall upon my two little innocent children, when they will see how their father has been brought to the grave. Then they will cry: They know that their mother is already decayed in the cold grave, and after I am gone they will be fatherless and motherless in this world. Neither one of them will know what will become of them. It makes me shudder, and my heart quiver, to think of what I am about to do, and still I cannot get it out of my head and heart. I beg of you, my sister (meaning Mrs. Louis Wetzel) that she will not permit the people to remove my dead body and that of my wife from the place where they are found until they are taken to the grave. I request that both bodies be put in one grave. My brother (John B. Hornstein) will show the friends where the grave is. All the expenses of the funeral shall be paid out of my money. Get a shroud for me. I direct that five carriages be engaged—two to be used by my wife's people, and three for my people; and get a priest, if I thought best, but, if the priest does not conduct the funeral, I hope the priest will not demand for the funeral a sense of shame; for the people always made me out a bad man, although I was always good to her until the last hour, and she had no cause for complaint, for I have always treated her well. Her people are the cause of this horrible murder. I hope that dear God Almighty will pardon us and give every day for the forgiveness of the sins of myself and my children. I beg that my last wish may be fulfilled, which I leave in my own writing. I beg the coroner to select Gus Harpstrite and John Bickel as the two first men to serve upon the jury at the inquest, because they are acquainted with my circumstances, and I think the forgiveness of my friends and enemies, and I think that God Almighty will not condemn me, because it is not my fault. False reports are responsible for this bad deed, and they were circulated by people who say they are Good Catholics, but my conscience tells me that they will have to suffer for what is done.

JOHN A. HORNSTEIN.

Forgive bad writing, because my whole body trembles, and the tears run out of my eyes on account of my trouble and the sadness of my heart.
Other letters written by the suicide were found. One was to his children, in which instructions were given as to the proper distribution of his property, and in which he requested that $100 be sent to his aged mother in Germany. A letter was found addressed to the Catholic Priest, in which Hornstein requested that the clergyman to do his best to bring his young wife back to him, and promised to give the Priest $50 if he succeeded, and then intimated that if something wasn't done to bring about a speedy reconciliation the result would be awful. But it seems that letter was never perused by the person to whom it was addressed. Near the heart of the suicide was found a worn letter, dated April 8, 1880, (about the time when the final separation took place), in which Hornstein's young wife, who was then in Decatur, told her husband that she loved him and would live with him again. The letter reached Hornstein while he was at St. Louis, and had been jealously guarded by him since that time.

Michael Bowersock and W. J. Church were the only witnesses who testified at the inquest, who gave the particulars of the tragic occurrence substantially as stated in these columns on yesterday.

THE VERDICT.

The jury returned the following verdict: In the matter of the inquisition on the body of John A. Hornstein, deceased, held at Decatur, Feb. 1st, 1881, we, the undersigned jurors, sworn to inquire into the death of John A. Hornstein, on oath, do find that he came to his death by his own hand from the effects of a wound inflicted in the right temple by a pistol ball, and also from the effects of a deep wound on his neck, believed to have been made by a dull wood saw, either of which would have produced death.

R. McGOWAN, Foreman, W. A. Bradley, P. Bauer, Conrad Ammann, John A. Songer, Patrick Conner.

It was suggested that a post mortem examination of the suicide's head be had, but on consultation with the deceased's relatives, it was thought best to carry out the suggestion.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral of the suicide will take place to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, from the residence of Mrs. Louis Wetzel, on South Webster street.

Hornstein had been married five times, and leaves quite a number of children by his two first wives, both of whom are dead. No child was born to him by his living wife. During his lifetime Hornstein has ever been a hard-working, saving man, and had saved, it is variously estimated from $5,000 to $12,000; but how much money or property he leaves to his wife and children is not known, but it must be considerable.

MARRIAGE OF A MEXICAN COY.

Hon. R. O. Smith has handed in the following, clipped from a late California paper. The bridegroom was formerly a resident of Mt. Zion, in this county, and the bride—Mrs. Smith—was an orphan, the daughter of one of the wealthiest citizens of Santa Clara county, California.

On Tuesday morning the venerable mansion of the Martin family, which stands in the south-east corner of the city, was the scene of an interesting ceremony. The marriage of Julia, the youngest daughter of Mr. Julius Martin to Mr. Chas. Hornbeck, was celebrated in the presence of the family of a few friends, Rev. J. L. Drum, of the Presbyterian church, shaped the vows which hold them in the holy bondage of wedlock. Mr. Hornbeck has been the railroad station agent at Gilroy for some years. He is an upright, honest and enjoys public confidence. The bride is a good, intelligent lady, admired and honored by all her friends.

PERSONAL MENTION.

E. A. Gastman, who has been quite ill lately, is able to be around again, though he is still very sick. He gave us a call this morning. We regret to learn that his younger daughter is very ill with fever.

R. Eugene Pratt and Will Roberts, two well known energetic young men, have associated themselves together in the grain and commission business, under the firm name of Pratt & Roberts. Their office is on the second floor, opposite the postoffice.

Mrs. L. W. Hurd, one of two leading fashionable milliners in Peoria, gave us a call this forenoon and renewed her subscription to the REPUBLICAN. She has been in the city since Saturday, and will leave for home to-day. She will visit New York and Philadelphia in March next.

W. H. Kouns and family, of this city, who have been sojourning at St. Augustine, Florida, have gone to Nassau, New Providence, and have apartments at the Royal Victoria Hotel. Nassau is a famous winter resort, and is one of the famous islands. Mr. Ennis directs that the Daily REPUBLICAN be sent to his address at Nassau, via Fernandina, Florida.

Col. and Mrs. W. H. Harris, of Cleveland, are expected to arrive from the east on the afternoon train to-day, and will remain in Decatur for a short time, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rhee. Col. and Mrs. Harris have recently returned from an extended European trip, and are now on their way to Kansas City, where they formerly resided.

AL CASSELL ASSAULTED.

The following special telegram appeared in the Chicago Tribune of the 1st inst. Keokuk, Ia., Jan. 31.—When Mr. Al. Cassell was returning home from a party about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, he was attacked by an unknown person, who endeavored to knock him down with a sand-bag, and slight injuries, and, in a moment recovering himself, fired upon his assailant, which it is supposed took effect in his shoulder, as he threw his hand up as if shot. He then turned and fled, making a hasty retreat.

We are proud of Al, because he is a Decatur boy and has shown that he knows how to deal with Iowa thugs. He is a member of the Decatur Guards, and a son of Mr. B. H. Cassell. Al is in business at Keokuk, and was on his way home from a dance when he was assaulted in the manner above described.

PILES! PILES! PILES!

A Sure Cure Found at Last. No One Need Suffer.

A sure cure for the Blind, Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. Williams' Indian remedy, called Doctor Williams' Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of Piles, and thirty years' standing. No one need suffer the miseries of applying this wonderful ointment, which cures the tumors, allays the intense itching (particularly at night after getting warm in bed), acts as a powerful cathartic, gives genuine relief, and is prepared only for Piles, (fistulas of the private parts, and nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Conkberry, of Cleveland, says about Dr. Williams' Indian Ointment: "I have used some of the ointment, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. Williams' Pile Ointment, or ointment on receipt of price, $1.00."

Sweeney, the Forger.

Sweeney & Dart, of the commission dry goods house of No. 81 Leonard street, New York, failed on Jan. 31st, liabilities about $70,000; assets $20,000. The senior member of the firm has gone to Canada. He was a slick crook, and it appears has been keeping his concern afloat by systematic forgeries. He forged two notes on the firm of Linn & Scruggs, this city—one for $1,150, another for $1,225. These forged notes and forged notes of other well-known western firms, he readily sold to New York brokers, and doubtless intended to redeem them before they became due; but Sweeney & Dart got into a pinch, and the swindler was exposed. The Linn & Scruggs' notes were sold to O. M. B. Gart & Co., bankers and brokers of New York, and on Jan. 29, that firm telegraphed Linn & Scruggs of the purchase they had made. The firm here answered twice that they had no knowledge of giving the notes alluded to, and thus the matter stands. The following telegram appeared in the Globe-Democrat to-day.

New York, February 1.—"He was a sort of reckless man, and one who would take any chance, although I did not suppose him capable of downright dishonesty." So spoke a prominent commission merchant to a reporter on the alleged forgeries and flight of John A. Sweeney, senior partner of the dry goods commission house of Sweeney & Dart, Leonard street, who disappeared Friday, and has since been discovered to have committed forgeries to the amount of $13,000. The affair was the theme of animated discussion in the dry goods trade this morning. Universal surprise was the common expression. Dart, acting under the advice of counsel, was understood to have refused the combination to the safe. It was opened with a drill and the books submitted to inspection. They failed to give any information. Mrs. Sweeney was at the business place to-day. She is left penniless. Contributions were liberally given by the trade for her relief as soon as her necessities were made known.

Handwriting and Character.

London Society.

You never take a pen in your hand but you are showing something of your own character. The very style of the handwriting is an element in the determination of character. The way in which a man dashes off a letter is very much the way in which a man uses his voice.

There is a modulated ease in the tones of the handwriting. Without professing to be experts, like Messrs.
Chabot and Netherclift, we can certainly gather a general idea of character from the handwriting. A minister was commenting on a very strong dispatch in the presence of his sovereign. "The language is strong," said the statesman, "but the writer does not mean it; he is irresolute." "Whence do you see irresolution?" said the King. "In his n's and g's, please your Majesty." Only it is to be said that a great deal of humbug is often talked by people who profess to be judges of handwriting. I showed a professor of calligraphy a letter which I had received. He took a very unfavorable view of the handwriting. It was the handwriting of a man without learning, without genius, without feeling. "And now sir," I said, "will you look at the signature?" The letter was written by Lord Macaulay.

THE GENUINE DR. C. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the Liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia, and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

ACUE AND FEVER.
No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking quinine. As a simple purgative they are unequalled.

Beware of Imitations.
The genuine are never sugar coated.
Each box has a red wax seal on the lid,
with the impression, McLANE'S LIVER PILLS. Each wrapper bears the signature of Dr. C. McLane and Fleming Bros.
Insist upon having the genuine
Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by

FLEMING BROS., Pittsburgh, Pa.,
the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently
by same pronunciation.
